

LIST OF NATIONAL STATISTICS

National Statistics

The attached list is the set of 'National Statistics', as at January 2007. This list can also be found on the National Statistics website, where any changes to the scope of National Statistics are also recorded:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/ns\_ons/nsproducts/default.asp

The National Statistics designation

The concept of 'National Statistics' - defined as statistics which have been produced in accordance with the arrangements set out in the 'Framework for National Statistics' (2000), and which conform to the 'National Statistics Code of Practice' (2002) - only applies to 'outputs' or 'products', and not to the data sources from which those outputs/products are derived - be they administrative, or statistical sources. In the case of ONS, all of its outputs/products are currently automatically classified as 'National Statistics'.

If a statistical product (e.g. a Census output) is published in a variety of spatial formats (UK, National, Regional, County, etc) the listing includes only the generic title rather than the title of each geographical version.

Where a statistical product is published in different stages of readiness (e.g. provisional, interim, final) the listing includes only the generic title rather than the title of each different version.

This listing incorporates the titles of the following National Statistics:

- All National Statistics First Releases, Statistical Bulletins, Publications, Compendia, Databases, Reference volumes, Articles, etc (whether hardcopy or electronic) the main purpose of which is to disseminate collated and compiled statistics to users in their finished state.
- all statistical outputs which fit the definition of 'Experimental Statistics' set out in the Annex to the National Statistics 'Protocol on Data Presentation, Dissemination and Pricing'.
- appropriate supporting products which provide explanatory information about the data, rather than statistical data per se.
- A few compendia products, for example ONS's 'Social Trends', which are themselves designated as 'National Statistics' may also incorporate some statistics which are not so designated.

The listing does not include:

- Individual outputs in which National Statistics are embedded - for example, in PQ replies, journals, conference papers, computer print-outs, spreadsheets, discussion documents, internal papers, e-mails etc.
- historical or 'one-off' products which pre-date the launch of the National Statistics system in June 2000.

This document is 81 pages long.
